A Lecture on "Challenging Disability with Determination" in Al Ain University

People with special needs often outweigh others with full capabilities due to their strong willingness and determination, especially if there are opportunities. On this occasion, the Student Affairs Deanship in Al Ain University of Science and Technology, based in Al Ain, organized a lecture entitled "Challenging Disability with Determination" by Mrs. Malaka Nawaf Ezzedine. She's a blind woman who dazzled everyone with her achievements, her self-defiance and of the encountered difficulties. She strongly maintained her determination that does not recognize desperation and gave hope for a safer time to come. Aptly, she proved that a blind person is like everyone else, who is capable of giving and using up of decisions, success and excellence, surpassing the wrong ideas and that a society may hold towards people with particular demands.

And through the experience of live appearances, she recorded the audience her ability to interpret any document of an existing memory card by using her reading device at the same velocity as any individual. She too has read to the audience several text messages from her cell phone.

This virtuous lady has gained overwhelming admiration and appreciation, standing helplessly before the force of God Almighty as one admits the "Science of Human Learning".
