Media Students learn about the work mechanism of “Al Ettihad”

A Student's delegation from the College of Mass Communication and Media at Al Ain University of Science and Technology, Abu Dhabi Campus, visited Al Ettihad newspaper, one of the most important newspapers in the UAE, in order to learn about the journalism and how to make news. The delegation also toured the various sections of the newspaper.

During the visit, the students also learned about the most important challenges faced by the press and ways to confront them, to improve the work of the press and media, and the need to provide the educational outputs with the different technological skills required by various media organizations in the UAE.

This visit followed the approach and recommendations of Al Ain University of Science and Technology to enrich the knowledge of students and expand their perceptions and prospects, which enhance their skills and would make them familiar with all aspects of the media professions and specialties.
